A sample

Every store we hold of 22 apps.

Store Atlas follows the stores of 22 apps in India, store by store: each store's position where we hold one, and how sure it is; its address where we hold one; its name, type, hours, delivery promise and licence where the app shows them; what it lists and how much of it is in stock; and what changed since the last update.

12,031 stores on 22 apps

In 1,092 cities across 32 states and union territories.

* Their stores include shops that take quick orders, not only dark stores; each store's Type says what it is.

And 567 more stores, cafes and kitchens on the category apps, from fashion and beauty to pharmacy, pets and food.

This week: 122 stores new to our census, 1 closed and 12 moved.

A store new to our census may be older than this week.

In this sample

About six stores of each app, from Bengaluru and Gurugram where the app is there; about half of a small app's. One or two show every field; on the others what names or places the store is masked `•••••`. Stores are numbered here; the full data gives the app's own store id.

In the plan

Every store we hold, with every field we hold, in Excel and CSV: every week. One app is held back from the files for now. The data library and the definition of every field come with the plan.

₹35,999 for the first 2 months

Then ₹19,999 a month by autopay. Every store we hold, with its files: every week

₹34,999 one time

Every store we hold, as it stands the day you buy, yours to keep

Only need a few cities? Five cities: up to 5 cities, ₹19,999 one time, GST included, in India.

GST included. seetheshelf.com/atlas/pricing

Products and stock are the store's own. Delivered to its address counts everything Blinkit delivers there, from the stores it uses, each product once; the card above and the Excel say which stores.

How each app is counted

Each count is what our checks found at the store. Each store has two counts: the products at the store itself, and the products delivered to its address, which an app may fill from more than one of its stores.

Blinkit fills an order from more than one of its stores. The store's count is its own range. The address count is everything a shopper there can order: the store's range with the long-tail, extended long-tail and pharmacy ranges other Blinkit stores send to the same address.

Zepto delivers most addresses from two stores: the store nearby, and a larger Zepto store with a far wider range. The store's count is its own range. The address count is every range Zepto offers there, each product once, the larger store's from our latest check of it. Both are at least what the app listed: where we know of no second store, the address count is the store's own.

Swiggy Instamart delivers some addresses from a second store as well. The store's count is its own lists; the address count both stores' lists, each product once. Both are at least what the app listed.

Flipkart Minutes does not say which of its stores sends each product. One count: everything at the store's address, at least what the app listed.

BigBasket fills most of an order from the store's own centre and a few products from a nearby store's centre. The store's count is the centre that sends most of its products; the address count every centre's products.

Amazon Now delivers some addresses from a larger superstore as well. The store's count is its own products. The address count is the store's, and at least that where a superstore also delivers: the superstore's range is not counted.

JioMart is counted store by store: the store's count only.

Myntra M-Now delivers an address from the store, from other M-Now stores and from Myntra's city warehouses, which deliver in a few hours rather than minutes. The store's count is what the store itself sends to its own address; the address count every sender's products. Both are at least what the app listed.

Slikk, ZILO, KNOT, Nykaa Now, Zepto Pharmacy, Plazza, Supertails, OZi, Peeko, Zepto Cafe, Bistro, Swish and DMart Ready: one store delivers each address, so the two counts are the same.

On Blinkit, about 7 in 10 of a typical store’s shelves are checked to the end.

On BigBasket, about 6 in 10 of a typical store’s shelves are checked to the end.

Zepto, Swiggy Instamart and Flipkart Minutes: at least the count shown, as our checks see part of each store’s range. Zepto’s count includes products the store lists out of stock.

Amazon Now and JioMart: only what they sell, and JioMart’s stores carry smaller ranges. Amazon Now marks only some of its products in stock; the rest carry no mark.

All apps each store and each city counted once	12,031	1,092

* Their counts include shops that take quick orders, not only dark stores; each store's Type says what it is.

One more app is held back from the files for now: its stores are not in the total. Zepto Cafe's stores are all Zepto stores, so the total counts each of them once, under Zepto. Each app's cities and each category app's count are masked (•••••) in this sample.

Each position comes with how sure it is: exact is within 250 m, approximate within 1 km, area farther.

For location and geo teams

Site selection, real estate, GIS, lenders and consultancies: each store's position where we hold one, and how sure it is, its address, pincode and licence where we hold them, and the new, closed and moved stores at each update.

For people who work on the apps

Sellers, brands, researchers, investors and media: every store we hold, its type, what it lists and what is out of stock there, its delivery promise, and how each network grows.

Every store we hold, with every field we hold.
